ROGERS WITH ROY BELGER AND SAM COLLIER OF DORSEY TRAILERS

Changes At

Airport Are

Clarified

Confusion over the placement of airport lights, markings, etc., led to a return trip to Elba by officials of the Alabama Department of Aeronautics last Wednesday morning. Mr. Bob Rogers and Mrs. James Beck had been in Elba the week before, had written a letter spelling out the needs for placing the "threshold lights" after extending the runway. The need for lowering a hump and the intersection of the two runways was also discussed at the Wednesday meeting.

The men explained that Federal standards called for the exact placement of the lights to tell pilots the airline clearance at night, and painted markings to give the information during daylight hours.

Rogers was assisted by engineers from Dorsey Trailers in establishing the area to be repaired to smooth out the hump in the North-South runway. He recommended the gradual build-up of the runway with gravel and asphalt as the best method, and suggested ways to get the work accomplished. Rogers said that while grading down the runway would work, it would destroy the East-West runway and was not his recommended method.

National Security Reports Promotion, Dividend

The Board of Directors of National Security Insurance Company has declared a regular semi-annual dividend of $1.16 per share. The cash dividend is payable on May 30, 1980, to shareholders of record May 15, 1980.

In making the announcement, J.R. Brunson, President, said, "In spite of the present economic uncertainty, we are pleased to continue our policy of directly sharing our success and financial strength with our shareholders. Barring any unforeseen catastrophes such as we experienced in 1979, we are optimistic that 1980 will be another good year for the company."

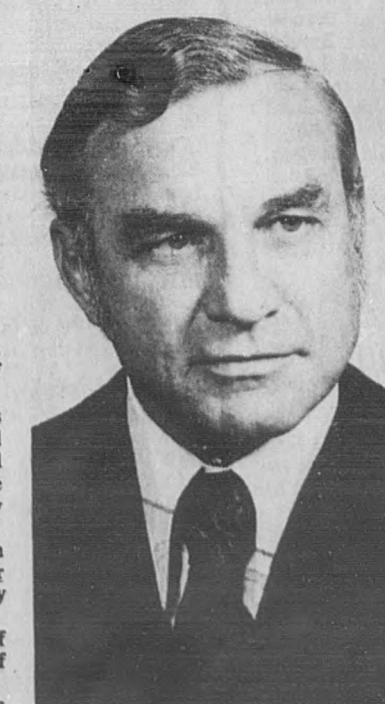

In the same announcement, it was reported that Mr. Earl E. Peters was promoted to Assistant Vice President of the company.

A Certified Life Underwriter, Peters joined National Security in 1979 and will continue his duties of initiating and implementing new projects for both the Life Company and the Fire and Casualty Company.

Earl and his wife, Alma, moved from Orlando, Florida, to Elba in September of last year and reside on Flournoy Street.

They have two daughters - Pam, of Savannah, Georgia, and Kim, of Greensboro, North Carolina.

Earl and Alma are associated with the Methodist Church here in Elba.

Army Engineers Plan Flood Control

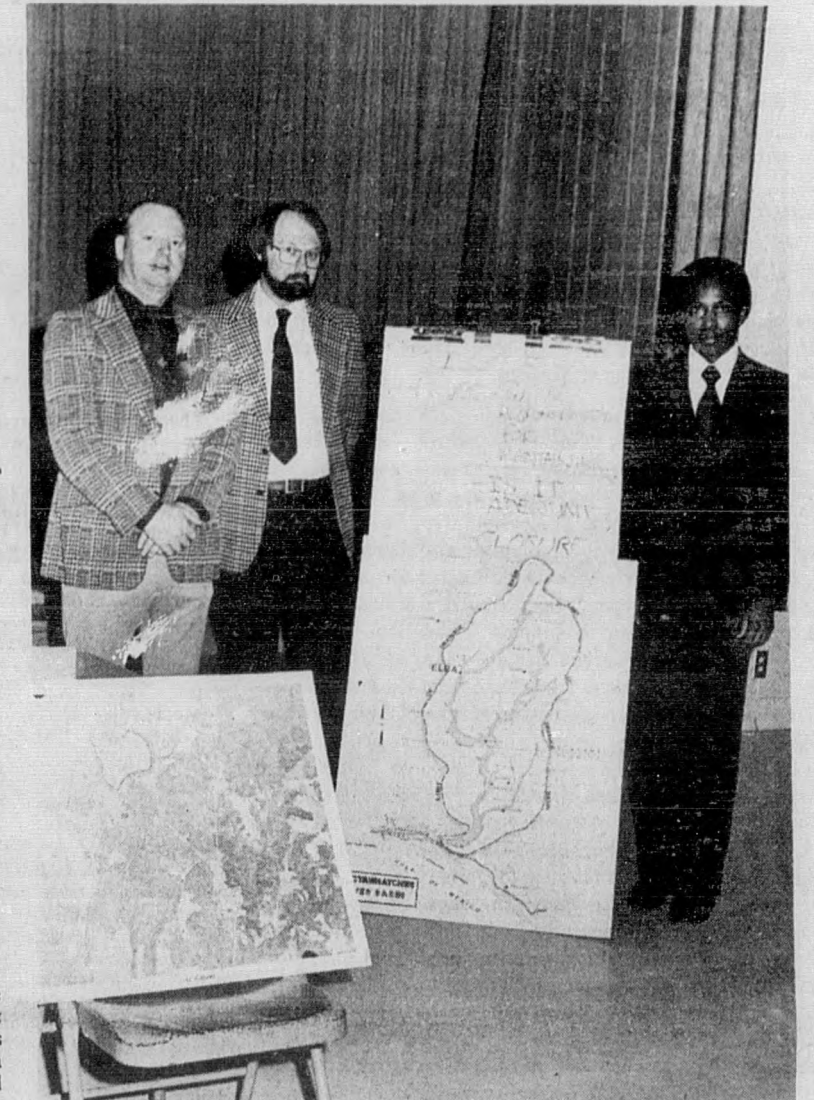

The Army Corps of Engineers held a public workshop in Elba, Geneva and also in Caryville, Florida, concerning flood control, hydropower, navigation and other needs of the Choctawhatchee River and tributaries, including the Pea River.

The meeting in Elba began with an outline of the flooding history of the system, the background of the previous work done by the Corps in the area, and how formal requests from mayors in Elba and Geneva, following the 1975 flood, led to instructions from Congress for this data collection and report.

It was pointed out that the present levee around Elba has worn down over the years, and neither original design nor maintenance over the years match with current engineering thinking. The drainage valves under the levee, height of the levee, and the slope of the sides would be different under current thinking, said Mr. William H. Reid, who is heading the project.

The study will continue for several months, with the final report due to Congress in 1983.

Flooding during February, 1975, occurred after a heavy rainfall of over nine inches in 24 hours in the upper portions of the Pea River watershed. Waters inundated about 11,000 acres in the vicinity of Elba, of which 1,300 acres were crops, 2,700 were pasture, and 7,000 were hardwood forest. The flooding caused the evacuation of about 800 people, and it damaged roads, utilities, farmlands, residential properties and commercial establishments. Total urban damages at Elba were estimated after the flood to be $140,000. The major portion of these damages occurred near the confluence of the Pea River and Whitewater Creek, and involved 40 homes, all located outside the levee. However, the existing levee reduced flood damages by about $500,000.

POOR ORIGINAL

BRAINSTORMS

WITH FERRIN COX

Attendance at the flood control planning meeting last Thursday night was something less than overflowing. Actually, there were only seven (7) Elba citizens at the meeting. If you look at these seven, you see the old editor (reporting the news), Dykes Rushing (representing the Alabama Highway Department), Rex Boutwell (county commissioner), Bob Folsom (mayor of Elba), Wayland Sharpless (city councilman). This leaves two citizens who actually were directly touched by the high water of 1975. . . . Joe Johnson and Jack Sondergaard. The limited turnout did not cause any problems; actually, we all got to do a lot of talking. The plan is long-range, and after it is completed in 1983, we should be able to use it to replace a lot of red tape when requesting help from other federal and state agencies in improving the lot of ourselves and our friends and neighbors. This study will include special words about flooding, hydro power and recreation development.

We read that the Geneva mayor is upset over the statement reported from one or more of the flood control meetings about Geneva could get flooded. Well, we were at one of the meetings, have copies of the printed matter, etc., and we don't see what he is upset over. Sure, Elba is potentially in trouble over a big flood, but, according to the Corps of Engineers, so is Geneva, in spite of Mayor Herring's opinion. Actually, the facts indicate Geneva suffered far more damage to the "minor" flooding of 1975 than did Elba ($500,000 to $140,000 for Elba). Now, we don't want to start a fuss over something none of us can control, but feel the good mayor is wearing his feelings on his sleeve when he gets upset over a news article in The Dothan Eagle, when all it is doing is stating facts. . . . P.S. Obviously, the Geneva mayor was at one time concerned about flooding, as he reportedly requested this study by the Army Engineers!

A lot of folks in Elba are upset that the Cafe Bonaparte is now closed. We join in this thinking, as the food was fine and the fame of the food was spreading far and wide, even during the few short months the restaurant was open. Elba needs few things to accent the fine people living here, and this eating facility was one of those places any community could point to with pride. We hope the closing is temporary, and we will soon see "now open" signs around the Bonaparte. We don't eat out enough to support any restaurant, and we fortunately don't use doctors enough to support them, but we do like the idea of challenging folks to point out a place to get finer food (to suit any taste) than at one of Elba's various eating establishments.

Billy Joe Magwood has been ruled mentally able to stand trial for the shooting death of Sheriff Neil Grantham on March 1, 1979, and by now is probably back in custody of Sheriff Brice Paul and in some jail other than Coffee County jail. The decision on this mental change in Magwood was made a couple of weeks ago apparently, but it was kept quiet for a while. Last Thursday The Enterprise Ledger broke the story and caught most of us unaware. This caused Sheriff Brice Paul some trouble, as he was accused by more than one member of the news media of controlling the news and only letting certain folks have "hot news." Paul continues to deny this and we can't judge; however, in the past there have been some rather stupid efforts made to delay news in this case, and we can readily see why he would be so concerned. We told Brice Friday that if he was ever guilty of such actions, he was doing something no smart politician would ever consider doing. . . . offending the news media, and through them, the citizens who look to that mode of communication as their personal line of communication with public officials. Whatever the past has held, Sheriff Paul agreed to put out this "hot news" just as thoroughly as he puts out stories of dumping whiskey, drug-smuggling, etc. We can't quarrel with this decision.

Parking decisions are "no-win" situations for city officials. Last week the Elba City Council modified the previous two-hour parking plan of the previous meeting, but still we are getting complaints. The word we are giving people is not to worry, because this policy will not be enforced as much as the parking meters were. . . . therefore, for all practical purpose, we will have no parking control. Until someone proves us wrong, we believe we have spoken the truth.

NEWS FROM ALABAMA LUNG

INVASERS IN THE DUST

Storms that swirl contaminated dust can be hazardous to people's lungs and lives. Two winters ago, a freak windstorm swept across a valley in southern California. Soon after, there was a sharp upsurge in instances of a fungus disease called coccidioidomycosis. The disease appeared as much as 400 miles farther north.

The winds scattered the dust over an area larger than the entire state of Maine. More than 500 people became infected by the fungus. Six died.

According to the American Lung Association, coccidioidomycosis is a sickness of degree. Most people inhaling the spores do not get sick at all. The lungs' defenses work well enough to trap the spores in the mucus that moves inside the air tubes. The mucus sends the spores into the lungs where they are either spit out or swallowed harmlessly.

If the mucus does not trap all the coccidioidomycosis spores, however, the spores can settle deep in the lungs where they develop into pods that are filled with even tinier seeds. When the pods burst open, the seeds spread in the lungs and can invade the bones, brain and skin.

Every year 100,000 people in the United States-most of them in the Southwest-develop coccidioidomycosis. Most are between the ages of 25 and 55, although anyone can become infected. Although more men than women develop the disease, pregnant women are more susceptible to the most serious form of the disease when the spores spread throughout the body. For some unknown reason, people with dark skin are also much more prone to the serious form than are lighter-skinned persons.

IN MEMORIAM

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article appeared in the "Milton, Florida, Press Gazette" on April 10, 1980, about Mrs. Margaret English Jones, who recently passed away!

Editor, The Press Gazette, About three and one-half years ago I made my way to the workshop at Milton High School to begin testing academically talented students. Around a long table sat teachers busily preparing for second period and discussing the latest political drama. Relishing the early morning bustle and joining the conversation, I looked about and my eyes fell upon a woman whose dark hair was coaxed neatly into a chignon and whose dress was immaculate.

late. She was studiously bent perusing English papers; a red pencil was poised, and every word and then she would write something in the margins.

Though she looked utterly alone and inextricably absorbed, remember saying to myself that should the world begin crumbling at that moment somehow that lady would find a bit of solid earth upon which to preserve those papers. Further, as the conversation raged on, the lady continued her work with a quite fury until, at a critical juncture, I took a passage from Shakespeare to demonstrate the weakness of the political figure under discussion, and suddenly she looked up with large eyes, the color of burnt umber, and a kindred feeling took flame. This was I introduced to Margaret Jones.

The two weeks I spent in that workshop during first period allowed inconvertible evidence that this lady, in the most exacted tradition, was called to be a teacher. Moreover, her administrators and colleagues, her students and friends cry in a single voice that the calling transcended contract hours. That this calling was something more than imparting knowledge, though it was that; that it was more than her unequalled ability to illustrate human folly through the utilization of characters in literature, though it was that too; that it was more than prying open the mind, and indeed it was that, is evidenced by the dimensions of the intellectual curiosity she ignited in her students, for her calling was a summons to excellence.

To bid farewell to such an exquisite life how fitting to have Robert Shaw conduct Brahms' German Requiem on the Milton High auditorium stage, where Margaret held Shakespeare in theatre so many times. This sublime eulogy is the perfect musical statement for her passing.

May it be that one student will write a history of Milton where he shall surely speak of Margaret Jones, teacher.

For a poetic eulogy, I find the words of Edna St. Vincent Millay suitable: "A fragment of what you felt, of what you knew, a formula, a phrase remains, but the best is lost."

Margaret had arresting qualities, such as her eyes. Oh, what mighty things they were. Sometimes they look.

Some states have strict eye examinations for driver's licenses, but others do not. Every driver should have regular eye tests to be certain there is nothing seriously wrong with his vision.

Other health problems can be the cause of highway accidents. As an example, severe sneezing and coughing can cause you to lose control of your vehicle. Pull to the side of the highway when suffering from severe coughing or sneezing.

Levin Harrison Taylor was the son of Leroy and Jane Taylor, who settled in Coffee County in the vicinity of Elba about 1845. Frances Matilda Taylor was the daughter of James W. and Violet Taylor, who also settled in the vicinity of Elba about the same time. The Taylors are said to have migrated to Coffee County from South Carolina. There were also other Taylor families living in the area that came from South Carolina, who were probably related.

If any of your readers could help me in my research of the Taylor family of Coffee County, I would be most grateful if they would write to me at the address below. Your cooperation and assistance is greatly appreciated.

Hunting

Corner

By: Suzanne Sanders and Boyd Deal

Hey all you gobblers hunters out there, our news this week is a little more exciting than our report last week. Due to the sickness of one of the reporters, the article last week was short. This week's news will cover last week's happenings, too. It was bad luck for four sad turkeys when Buck Jackson, Greg Parker, Wayne Parker, and Joe Lee hit the woods last week. The beard measurements of the turkeys bagged were: Buck Jackson's-10 5/8 inches, Greg Parker's-8 inches, Wayne Parker's-4 1/4 inches, Joe Lee's-3 inches. The largest turkey reported to us to date was Buck Jackson's latest kill. Good Luck to all you fellow hunters. May next week's kill be the biggest yet.

Kellie Sheffield was the winner of the 4-H Sewing Contest

Kelly Sheffield Wins Review

By: Mrs. Angela Hughes and Kathy Sawyer

"Dressed fit to kill," so the old saying goes. This description suited Kellie Sheffield of Zion Chapel very well. Forty-three garments were turned in for judging in the 4-H clothing program. Of these, twenty-four modeled in the County Fashion Review held in Elba. Spring was welcomed with romper suits, aprons, slacks, blouses, dresses, and even three-piece suits. Three-piece suit was what Kellie chose for her outfit. The plum colored skirt and vest was accented by a soft pink floral blouse. Kellie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Sheffield.

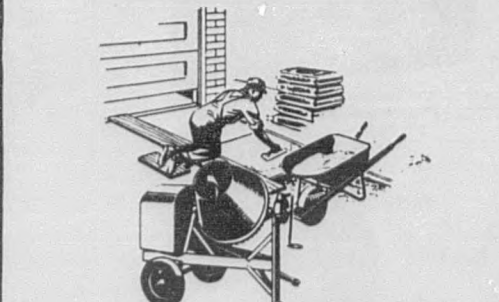

Other girls from Zion Chapel entering the sewing contest were: Vanessa Hudson, Sheila Adair, Sharon Pope, Gail Richards, Ginger Routson, Tammy Gibson, Cheryl Faison, Kathy Reeves, Lisa Dyess, all from the elementary school. Participants from the high school were: Beverly Ellison, Priscilla McClain, Michele Cole, and Marilyn McClain. Winners were chosen

Students Participate In District FBIA Competition

BY: CURTIS FRAZIER

Rhonda Sipper and Bobby Berry of the Future Business Leaders of America (FBIA) club at the Coffee County Area Vocational Center were among the winners at the FBIA District IV Conference held at Northview High School in Dothan on March 29, 1980. Rhonda Sipper, a senior at New Brockton High School, won first place in business office procedures with her knowledge of basic office skills, including word processing, records management, business communication, business law, and data processing. Sipper, the local club's secretary, was a winner in the District IV typing competition last year.

With a speech entitled, "A Job Worth Doing," Bobby Berry won second place in the public speaking contest. His speech was a message of encouragement for all FBIA members. Berry, the local club's historian, is a senior at Zion Chapel High School.

The District IV FBIA meets annually and tests FBIA club members on various business skills. Students winning at the district level are given the opportunity to compete at the state level and state winners compete at the National FBIA Conference. This year the National Conference will be held in Washington, D.C. from July 1-4. Mrs. Verneette Maddox, the club's advisor, believes that these two winners will represent the school and District IV well at the State Conference.

WHAT'S WRONG?
Do you ever feel like everyone's against you, or everything's going wrong? That's the time to take control and decide where the problem is. If you've been overly sensitive or irritable, then maybe the problem is with you. And maybe you need to make some changes in your attitude and your way of reacting to others.

But sometimes the problem is with the other person. Maybe they've had a bad day or maybe their attitude is a negative one. You can't change the other person, but you can realize where the problems lie.

Try a positive attitude. At least it helps you to feel good. And, in most cases, it helps others to feel better. Everyone likes to be around someone that's happy and looks for the good things in life. And most people will react in a positive way to others who are positive.

Take control and learn to be your best friend. Check for even heat conductivity, non-porous finishes, smooth surfaces, and tip-resistant balance. Corners should be flat and easy to clean. Look for heat-resistant knobs and handles which are securely attached.

Straight sides and flat or slightly inverted bottoms are important for even heat distribution. Corners should be rounded to simplify cooking and cleanup. Rolled edges are important for sanitation, safety and ease of care.

Follow washing and cooking instructions as well as any safety precautions provided by the manufacturer. In keep cookware in good condition.

PIE CRUST
An upper pie crust will be more flaky if you brush it lightly with cold water just before popping it into the oven. And here's a way to keep the bottom crust of a fruit pie from becoming soggy. Just put half of the sugar-thickener, seasoning mixture under the rolls.

WHAT'S WRONG?
Do you ever feel like everyone's against you, or everything's going wrong? That's the time to take control and decide where the problem is. If you've been overly sensitive or irritable, then maybe the problem is with you. And maybe you need to make some changes in your attitude and your way of reacting to others.

But sometimes the problem is with the other person. Maybe they've had a bad day or maybe their attitude is a negative one. You can't change the other person, but you can realize where the problems lie.

Try a positive attitude. At least it helps you to feel good. And, in most cases, it helps others to feel better. Everyone likes to be around someone that's happy and looks for the good things in life. And most people will react in a positive way to others who are positive.

ALL AROUND COFFEE COUNTY County Farm Agent TOM CASADY

VERY HELPFUL
Dr. E.L. Gibson of Enterprise called me expressing his interest in helping the senior citizens of this community in establishing small garden plots. Dr. Gibson looks at gardening as a practical way to provide fresh vegetables for families and also a way to save some of the costs of food. In addition to this, many senior citizens enjoy working outside in a garden as a way to more fully enjoy the great outdoors.

Brenda Allen, of our staff, is meeting with Dr. Gibson to outline some of the projects which a committee headed by Dr. Gibson might undertake. What a great thing it is for Dr. Gibson to have this desire to help our people! It is obvious that Dr. Gibson believes that "everything you send to the lives of others comes back to you."

PEANUT POWER
This country's peanut exports have been at a record high the last two seasons totaling more than 1.1 billion pounds in the 1978-79 marketing season. Our supplies of peanuts have been competitively priced in the world market since supplies from India and other major exporting countries were reduced. The 1979-80 outlook is for another good export year with the level influenced largely by India's peanut situation.

Incidentally, two years ago we exported 1.1 billion pounds. This is equivalent to 500,000 tons. This is about 14 times the production of Coffee County in 1979.

HELP WANTED
We need about a dozen people to volunteer to help with the 4-H Club Rally on May 9. We are having two 4-H rallies this year because of the numbers involved. One of the big ones will be the New Brockton football stadium Friday, May 9. About 1200 4-H Club members will be attending, along with teacher leaders and principals.

We need volunteers to help with the field events (keeping scores, lining up contestants, etc.) plus some people to help in the concession stands (taking care of food and drinks). If you can work with us from about 9:30 until 2:00, or any portion of that time, call me at 894-5596 or 897-2776. We need your help and will appreciate your calling. Just call and say you are willing to help. We will give you full information.

HEALTHY PLANTS
Brenda Allen of the Extension Service has become most of our calls on preventing diseases and insects on ornamental plants. In addition, she works in both commercial and home garden production. She will help you with any problems you have.

A lot of foundation plantings around houses become infested with scale, white flies, and other insects which feed on the underside of the plants. Acceptate (Orthene, 15.6% EC) and Demeton (Cygon 2E or De-Fend E-287) are two materials which can be used by the homeowner to control many of these insects. Be sure to follow instructions as you apply these materials.

HOME GARDEN VARIETIES
Atkinson, Better Boy and Bonnie's Nematoide Resistant are probably the best tomato varieties you can buy here in Coffee County. Better Boy has even ripening characteristics, and will produce a little more early fruit than the other two varieties. Better Boy can be used by home gardeners where they need early season production.

If you plant the Atkinson or Better Boy, use tall stakes or trellises for supports. Incidentally, the Better Boy produces deep red, globe-shaped fruits that are smooth and easy to peel. Atkinson usually globe to flattened-globe shaped.

A new variety named Four Way Hybrid has looked good in early tests. You may want to include a few of these plants to see how they do. I am not sure if this variety is available though. If it is, try a few around your place.

Regardless of the varieties you select, be sure to buy those that are resistant to the virus and to root knot nematodes. Resistance is usually indicated by the addition of the letters, V F N, to the variety name.
